Attached is the City of Olivette’s Business Communication Plan. Revision to the plan were the result of a joint meeting between the EDC and the City Council. The City Council adopted the plan on February 11 and after discussion is charging the EDC with development of a plan to execute item #2 Expand awareness and gain insight of the City’s position and vision by engaging with key businesses through informal drop-ins.

Specifically, the EDC is asked to identify the businesses, create the questions, develop a schedule for visits, and compile/analyze the data.

All aspects of the Business Communication Plan are a shared responsibility of the staff, the Commission and the Council. By focusing first on expanding our knowledge and understanding of the current businesses, the City is better position to successfully implement all other recommendations. For instance, creation and use of a business information webpage will be successful if we understand what information is important and useful to new and existing businesses. (Understanding we may not collect this specific data at the “interview”; the interview may be the first step to the development of relationships.)

I ask that you review the revised Business Plan with a focus on the Recommendations.
City of Olivette
Business Communications Plan
Olivette Communication Plan for Business

Initiative Background
Small and large businesses play a critical role in fostering the economic vitality of a community, generating both jobs for residents and revenue for a city. It is important for city leaders to understand effective strategies for supporting and encouraging business development within their community. Whether it’s creating space for innovation, cutting red tape or proactively engaging the business community, there are many successful approaches that can be adopted by the City of Olivette.

Olivette wants to foster a climate that encourages all businesses to involve themselves in the community, to grow and strive for success. A plethora of businesses create community resiliency and more successful businesses create a greater tax base to foster community functions and services. Unique and niche businesses lend character to our community. Small and mission-oriented businesses create organic rapport with residents and local amenities also contribute to the city’s uniqueness and vitality – restaurants, stores, mom and pop shops shape Olivette’s streetscapes and create an environment that make the City a desirable place for residents, workers, and tourists. Live. Work. Play. Our businesses sponsor and support the Boo Bash, Turkey Trot, Parties in the Park, and other events and functions held by the City.

Businesses play an essential role in the growth and development of cities worldwide. Today, “the most forward-looking cities are actually reaching out to businesses with data, expert knowledge and partnership, rather than just words.”

Why Support Businesses?

Olivette’s business engagement initiative will demonstrate the City’s support for the business community and uncover opportunities to improve the business climate, find benefits for existing businesses and a means for the City to establish a meaningful and productive relationship with local businesses. Olivette is growing before our eyes. We want to be able to support a thriving business economy, to enhance neighborhood vibrancy, and to foster economic and social inclusion and equity.

According to a policy brief produced by the Institute for Local Self-Reliance, “locally owned businesses play a central role in healthy communities and are among the best engines that cities and towns have for advancing economic opportunity. [They] are also linked to higher rates of job creation, less income inequality, and stronger social networks.”

Connecting effectively and consistently with local businesses presents several benefits for the City Council.

- It displays a commitment to involvement in the community, as well as to community empowerment and improvement.
- It plays a vital role in creating or building economic benefits for the entire community.
- It plays a vital role in creating and building social benefits in the community.
- It helps the community – and particularly community groups and their members – to become empowered. Because of this empowerment, and the knowledge gained, it means the community has more of a chance to find creative and worthwhile solutions to problems or issues that may be raised.
- It improves the community's perceptions of the City Council and raises the Council's profile across a wider area.

City Council Goals and Objectives

This document proposes steps to foster a high-quality, efficient support system for all businesses; to develop tools, programs, and systems to address specific gaps that are vital to the City’s economic growth; and to enhance community engagement and partnerships.

Goal 5: Create opportunities for economic development and retain and improve existing businesses

Objective: Development of a communication plan for exchanging information with businesses—to include EDC and/or staff meetings with business owners.

Proactively Engaging the Business Community: What Are Other Cities Doing?

New York City – Webpage and Starter Guides to the City

The City of New York created a webpage for new and existing businesses.
The City offers “Starter Guides,” - entrepreneurs can find easily accessible information regarding the specific business that they intend to open, and the laws that are directly applicable to their work. By making this information user-friendly, New York has lowered the barriers to starting a business, thereby creating a culture of opportunity for all.

Cincinnati – Small Business Committee
Establishing a city with a culture of supporting small businesses and innovation requires the business community having a voice at the table. In Cincinnati, the Small Business Advisory Committee (SBAC), which includes representation from small business owners in the community, was developed to serve as a counsel to the Mayor, City Council and other local leaders on issues that impact small businesses.

Maryland, Minneapolis and San Francisco – Small Business Offices and Navigator
Cities can create a position within city government to guide business owners through local permitting requirements, and to serve as a liaison between small businesses and policymakers. Models include a Small Business Navigator office such as those in Montgomery County, Md., and Minneapolis, or a Small Business Commission, such as the one in San Francisco.

Detroit – Business Directory
The City of Detroit wanted to make business services and resources more assessible. The City created a comprehensive directory, called BizGrid, to help business owners find out about funding opportunities, legal assistance, office space, manufacturing facilities and business planning and marketing resources available to them. The tool is available online and distributed by 50 organizations in the city.

Seattle- On-site Business Consulting
Seattle provides on-site business consulting. Seattle's economic development office launched a program called GrowSeattle that consults small businesses on everything from getting financing to licensing and taxes to environmental sustainability. The program’s Citywide Business Advocacy Team aims to visit at least 500 Seattle small businesses every year and consults on everything from getting financing to expanding a business to licensing and taxes to environmental sustainability.

Various- Business Diversity Ordinance
A Business Diversity Ordinance can ensure that independent, neighborhood-serving businesses don’t get crowded out by chains. Municipalities around the country, from Fredericksburg, Texas, to Jersey City, have used this tool effectively. San Francisco’s 12-year-old policy is one of the most comprehensive. It requires a “formula” business to apply for a special use permit and meet criteria in order to locate in any of the city’s neighborhood commercial districts.

Communication Approach

City Council Objectives and Key Messages:

- Develop mutually beneficial partnerships
- Share our individual and joint successes with the world
- Create and build a stronger community
- Create a communication strategy that streamlines the sharing of information, tells our success stories locally and regionally, and creates and strengthens relationships between the City and businesses.

Retention and Expansion

Today most communities are stepping up their efforts to retain and expand businesses in their local economy. Business retention and expansion has become key to economic development strategies with the goal of building and keeping successful businesses that will have a sustainable economic impact on the community. Marketing and communications efforts and strategies will adjust depending on potential and current businesses. It is imperative to keep current businesses in the public eye by praising its contributions, while providing ease in services from the City. Branding and pitch are important for generating interest in Olivette as a place and community businesses want to be in. Cities that can provide businesses with good, concise information about relevant factors – economic performance, wellbeing of the population and where entrepreneurs are located, for example – will be the ones that attract investment

1. What are the identified marketing tactics to retain?
2. What are the identified marketing tactics to expand?

Branding

One of the challenges that the City of Olivette may encounter is the reputation of the City as a historically difficult place to work with.

Prior to fully implementing the recommendations outlined in this business communication plan, the City should take into consideration how the function of marketing should operate and be managed with leveraging interactions with potential and current businesses. A dedicated and centralized effort to controlling the accuracy, consistency and frequency of the City’s marketing will be most effective in reshaping the City’s image for LIVE WORK and PLAY.

Recommendation: Bridge the gap between the City’s external reputation and its internal reality; the external perception of the City is out of sync with what the City and community see as reality.

- Define mission and vision of City
- With new developments underway, this is a primary time to reshape the image and brand of Olivette.
- Ensure accuracy, consistency, and frequency in all internal and external communication efforts.
- Increase awareness of Olivette’s position to develop credibility, trust and transparency.
- Know Olivette community's culture and BUILD. How is Olivette described by people on the outside looking in? How do residents feel about themselves? Managing the messaging around culture is an important part of showcasing a community for potential business.

Media Relations
By focusing on establishing relationships with regional media, Olivette can generate positive news exposure about its development potential, increase coverage around new City programs or services, or showcase the regional benefits to potential businesses and residents that are considering relocating.

10“The biggest challenge that many places face is taking control of their identity and reputation which have been unmanaged for a long time.”

Current Business Engagement Structures
Olivette prides itself on being business friendly and proactive in attracting new developments that will grow our local economy. This section identifies some of the main business engagement structures already in place and supported by the City Council. However once established, most of the engagement comes in the form of donations and vendor partnerships with businesses. It is imperative collaborations between cities and business hold out the promise of significant progress in improving long-term economic growth, resilience and quality of life.

The Planning and Community Development Department
The Planning and Community Development Department oversees and communicates the development, construction and logistical side to businesses, residential and nonresidential properties including building code requirements, building permitting, land use permitting.

The department also provides support for businesses through the Business Guide, Dining Guide and walking and bike map.

The City of Olivette can employ several different tactics to achieve its communication approach.

Recommendations

Below is a list of recommendations the Council can discuss, consider and implement as next steps. The strategies and recommendations captured in this report will lay the foundation for a rich business communication plan that can expand and mature.

New Businesses

1. Outline a streamlined process when new businesses arrive to Olivette (Planning and Community Development)

For business owners, it can be easy to think of the City process as a hassle. Olivette wants a clear process from start to finish to ensure we efficiently support business and foster growth.

   a. Identify a contact person at the City Center for new and existing businesses. This trained professional will be the primary contact to support interested parties, businesses owners and business service organizations. This person will also connect businesses with the appropriate Olivette staff member for further engagement.

   b. Identify all City employees who interact with businesses to serve as additional business navigators.

   c. Create a new business e-mail address.

Existing Businesses

2. Expand awareness and gain insight of the City’s position and vision by engaging with key businesses through informal drop-ins. (City Staff, Council, EDC)

Conclusion: Businesses and the City of Olivette

The principles addressed through the Olivette Business Communications Plan will support with a level of aspiration improved relationships between Olivette and the businesses we serve. Olivette’s business efforts are divided across many departments which have direct responsibility for activities and relationship building. As part of this plan, the City will work to integrate the leadership, strategy, delivery, and marketing of programs and activities. Improved citywide partnerships and networks will strengthen the City’s business environment, while increasing accessibility, connectivity and community.

Businesses thrive when they are surrounded by a robust ecosystem of resources and opportunities— and when they can feel at home in the City in which they reside. At the core of this plan is a commitment by the City of Olivette to play an integrative role in achieving this vision and to invest in both proven and innovative recommendations to help businesses succeed. In turn, this support will strengthen Olivette’s economy, drive transparency and community, and enhance neighborhood vibrancy throughout the city.
